

The Fairfield Public Library began in 1876 in the Fairfield Academy building on Town Green. Back then, the library permitted people to borrow one book at a time when the library was open on Wednesday and Saturday evenings. The library had 677 volumes, and it charged people $1 a year to borrow books.

Over 125 years later, you'll find a modern facility with a welcoming, expert staff ready to assist you and services that are available 24/7.

And our prices have gone down since 1876: With your library card there is no charge to borrow any of our 250,000+ items and almost all of our services are free.
